MIDDLE EAST STUDIES CENTER
TITLE VI IMPACT REPORT

IMPACT ON OHIO

The Middle East Studies Center (MESC) fosters the intellectual growth and job-readiness of The Ohio State University graduates by:

- Offering courses on the Middle East
- Creating research opportunities
- Supporting students through internships and fellowships
- Providing hands-on work experience
- Negotiating with the university for tuition support
- Supporting language instruction
- Creating opportunities for cross-cultural interaction
- Facilitating exchanges with other institutions
- Outreach to military, P-12 and general public

UNDERGRADUATE SKILLS AND JOB-READINESS

MESC cultivates talent with Ohio State's undergraduate population, and provides work experience opportunities through its internship program, developing between three and five students each semester. MESC works with Career Services to ensure job readiness. Our internship program brings in eager and inquisitive young minds that are eager to advance the Center's mission by fostering knowledge and interest in the Middle East, and in doing so learning something themselves. Interns contribute regularly to web content, outreach programs, and to the organization of various events MESC either hosts or co-sponsors. MESC provides opportunities to strengthen cross-cultural communication skills by facilitating online conversations between Ohio State students and students at Istanbul University. Over the past year, over 20 Ohio State students were paired with conversation partners. Hundreds of students and up to 100 military officers are reached through our P-12 Outreach every year. Our center has been instrumental in creating some of the best Middle East expertise in the nation. Foreign Language Title VI grant funds have supported 247 Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) fellows, pursuing Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish and other less-commonly taught languages. Our graduates who studied these languages have moved on to fulfilling positions in a number of different fields: 37% attained positions in higher education; 34% gained employment in the private sector; 8% entered into professional fields; 5% found employment with non-profits; 4% commenced government careers 2% entered.

Title VI grant funds matched by university funds have supported 247 (FLAS) fellows, pursuing Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish and other less-commonly taught languages.

35,000 people have participated in our outreach and engagement activities over the past 10 years. Millions have been reached by radio, TV and internet media.

TITLE VI IMPACT REPORT

IMPACT ON CURRICULUM AND LANGUAGE INSTRUCTION AT OHIO STATE

MESC helps to infuse a foreign language and area studies dimension across the disciplines by seeding positions, courses, and through the FLAS fellowships and other curriculum enhancing activities. MESC reduces shortages of experts by seeding courses and faculty positions, by directly funding and teaching three courses, and by supporting the Eastern Consortium in Persian and Turkish*. As a leader in the consortium the Center raised hundreds of thousands of dollars over the years to support summer intensive language instruction in Persian, Turkish and Pashto, hosted here at Ohio State for three years. Since 1969, when the Center first received Title VI funding, MESC seeded the following courses and positions.

FACULTY POSITIONS SEEDED IN ANTHROPOLOGY, HISTORY AND TURKISH LANGUAGE

- Professor, Department of Anthropology, Archeology of Arabian Peninsula
- Associate Professor in the Department of History, Turkic/ Persian history of Central Asia
- Permanent Lecturer of Turkish, Near Eastern Languages and Cultures (NELC)

COURSES

- Introduction to the Modern Middle East (Enrollments: 50-100 each year)
- Contemporary Issues in the Middle East (Enrollments: 15 - 20 each year)
- Cultural Continuity & the Challenge of Political, Economic, & Social Transition in the Middle East
