This talk will introduce the current status of research and practices of shamanism in China, including several new museums focused on the Tungus shamanic tradition. It will describe the presenter’s fieldwork with some shamans of the Tungus-speaking peoples in Northeast China, and attempt to provide an explanation for the revival of shamanism in today’s political environment. The presentation will be accompanied by photo slides and video clips.

(Kun Shi can be reached at shi.7@osu.edu)